Urgent Mission Aimed At Quelling Russ Disquiet Over Lone Fight

HULL MAY CARRY NEWS

Insistent Russ Demands Likely To Be Answered In Message

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20—President Roosevelt will dispatch a special diplomatic envoy to Moscow immediately after the Quebec conference with a personal message to Soviet Premier Joseph Stalin outlining plans for an Anglo-American attack on "Fortress Europe" this year.

This urgent mission, authoritative quarters here said today, will be undertaken to quell Russian disquiet over having to bear the full brunt of Germany's land and air attacks for the last two years.

The message from President Roosevelt to Stalin, and a like message from Prime Minister Winston Churchill, is expected to answer in full Russia's insistent demands that an Allied attack be launched somewhere in western Europe which will occupy a substantial part of Hitler's huge land army.

Russia has insisted on Allied action that will be in sufficient force to divert German divisions from the eastern front. Russia contends that Allied preliminary moves in the Mediterranean, in Tunisia and in Sicily, as highly successful as they have been, have nevertheless failed to ease German pressure on Russia.

TOTS PUT ROCKS ON RAILS AND WRECK TRAIN

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Aug. 20—Three tots — two aged five and one six years old — today told police that they put stones on the tracks of the New York Central railroad which yesterday wrecked a Detroit-bound passenger train near Grand Rapids.

The train's fireman, John McCarthy, 58, of Jackson, Mich., was killed while baggageman Enos Price, 50, also of Jackson, suffered head injuries.

Three hundred passengers, in three crowded coaches, miraculously escaped unhurt, but were shaken up when the locomotive and five cars of the seven-car train were derailed.

The three children were released in the custody of their parents.

Europeans Pin Hopes On Invasion

Members Of Underground Ready For Action At First Signal

LONDON, Aug. 20 — Allied radio broadcasts to France, Belgium and other occupied countries have made a profound impression in recent weeks, the Daily Mail said today in a dispatch from Madrid.

Significant sentences from Allied broadcasts, it was said, have been posted on the walls of buildings in many French towns and police have refused to tear them down.

Hopes that the Allies are soon to invade the continent are running high in France, where hundreds of thousands of members of the underground are holding themselves in readiness for the expected Allied landings.

The stepped-up Allied aerial offensive against Nazi airfields in northern France has increased the belief that the invasion is coming in a matter of days.

A radio broadcast to France last night by a high officer of the British army again exhorted Frenchmen to prepare to help the Allied landing forces in every conceivable fashion.

"You who belong to resistance groups and specialists know already that your services are wanted on the day 'X' and the hour 'H,'" the officer said.

Informed observers interpreted this statement as an indication that the underground already knew the exact hour of the coming Allied invasion.

(A version of this broadcast, picked up in New York, quoted the officer as saying: "work out for yourselves the possible eventualities which may arise when the Allies come and how best to help—and start now.")

RADIO TALKER SELLS SELF AND JOINS AIR CORPS

STUTTGART, Ark., Aug. 20—Cadets at the Stuttgart army air field today handed the accolade as a super-salesman on the air to Cadet John N. Dunham of Sioux Falls, S. D. He was so good he sold himself.

Some time ago Dunham took a radio announcer's job for an air corps recruiting program over radio station WBBM in Chicago.

Under the impact of his own eloquence he gradually began to weaken and the first thing he knew, after about a month, he had enlisted in the air corps. Now he's in training at Stuttgart's twin-engine pilot school.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

Well, a thousand soldiers have been assigned to can tomatoes in South Jersey and that's a new kind of basic training.

They will be known as can-mandors.

The reason you've got to have soldiers to can tomatoes is that the tomato canners have been drafted into the army.

That makes sense only on the first bounce.

It should be noted that soldiers have not yet been steered into an AFL or CIO potato patch at fifty skins a month.

It is high time for John L. Lewis to organize the tomato vines.

And then the soldiers can go back to being soldiers and you will not hear of them being loaned as tomato pickers.

Thought for the day: Get into essential industry or be drafted. Get drafted and can tomatoes, ago.

Hollywood Murder To Be Aired At Inquest Scheduled For Monday

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 20 — Police today set Monday for an inquest into the murder of Violet Van Somerin, 33, former secretary to British Comedienne Gracie Fields, who was shot to death while she slept in her Hollywood apartment.

The confessed killer, Gaetano Falciani, 35, a former gardener at Miss Fields' Hollywood estate, was treated by physicians for pistol wounds self-inflicted after he fired two bullets into Miss Van Somerin's head.

From his bed at the General hospital prison ward, Falciani told police that he and Miss Van Somerin had been sweethearts until about three months ago, when she broke off their romance.

Gaining entrance to the attractive victim's bedroom by climbing a ladder and forcing open a window, Falciani shot her while she was sleeping, he told police.

"I shot her because she didn't love me any more," he said. "She wouldn't marry me."

WMC officials stated there was a "strong possibility" that enough non-deferable fathers would be called, thus eliminating any immediate need for drafting other parents. It was believed, however, this calculation was based on the possible extension of the non-deferable list, and a general exodus of fathers into vital war work.

With congress preparing to investigate the entire manpower situation upon reconvening next month, there were strong indications that some definite policy would soon have to be formulated regarding selective service.

With Secretary of the Navy Knox's statement that 2,861,000 will be in the navy, marine corps and coast guard by Jan. 1, observers pointed out that manpower figures submitted by the armed services and the WMC fall tall, indicating continued uncertainty concerning future draft needs.

According to this calculation, army and navy personnel will total 11,061,000 by Jan. 1, instead of the WMC estimate of 10.8 millions.

The reason, he told Judge John A. Scharbar in criminal court, was that he lost $10,000 savings in the bank. (The bank said it was only $4,000, and not the bank's fault).

But, anyway, that was 10 years ago.

INVASION WILL BRING FURTHER FOOD CONTROL

U. S. Faced With Serious Future As Allies Start To Feed Millions

HARMONY PLEA SOUNDED

Jones Favors Support Program To Assist Nation's Growers

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 — Sen. Harley M. Kilgore (D) W. Va., today warned that invasion of Europe will be the signal for more rigid food control in this country as the Allies assume the task of feeding the millions in liberated nations.

"Although production of meats and vegetables is at the highest point in history, the United States is faced with a serious future as to food," Kilgore said.

"The taking of Sicily, where there is a population less than half that of New York City, is an example of the responsibility we have assumed. Sicily's 4,000,000 people look to the United Nations for aid. At least a part of their food must come from this country. Whenever our military leaders decide that we invade Greece, Holland, Belgium or France, the problem will be multiplied many times."

Must Plan Program

Kilgore said the foremost task of the administration and the congress together is to formulate an over-all food program as part of the war effort. He urged that all partisanship and carping criticism be abandoned.

"There has been too much hampering of the administrative effort to meet our food problems," he declared.

As he pleaded for harmony, War Food Administrator Marvin Jones was pondering a program of minimum prices for basic commodities and production of more farm machinery and replacement parts.

"Farmers don't want to get rich out of the war but they do want adequate price protection and I think that the best way to assure them of it is a support program that would last through the commodity season," Jones said.

British Plan Opposed

Jones' statements followed the voicing of strong opposition by four big farm organizations to government proposals to purchase basic commodities for re-sale to the public along British lines of operation.

The four groups, all pointing for a revival of the subsidy battle when congress reconvenes on September 14, are the American Farm Bureau Federation, National Grange, National Co-operative Council and the National Co-operative Milk Producers' Association.

TEN TON TIGER OF SEA NETTED BY FISHERMAN

ASTORIA, Ore., Aug. 20—Stewart Davis, Astoria fisherman, told the story today of the big one that didn't get away—a 31-ft shark he estimated to weigh 20,000 pounds.

The ten-ton tiger of the sea was too big for Davis' boat after he untangled it from his torn nets, and part of it dragged in the water as he towed it triumphantly to port.

The shark's liver alone weighed a ton and at present prices will realize a pretty profit for the day's work.

Americans Experience Wide Thrill Variety In Waging War In Air

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Aug. 20—Things like this happen every day in the air war.

American Warhawks had bombed shipping north of the Messina straits and were headed for home. Then they ran into a nest of Messerschmitt 109s and Focke-Wulf 190s. Lieut. Paul MacArthur of Reform, Ala., chased an ME-109; poured in a few cannon and machine-gun bullets and the German craft spun flaming into the sea.

While MacArthur had been pursuing his prey, however, a second ME-109 had dived past him. His buddy, Lieut. Morris Watkins of Knoxville, Ark., noted the second plane, and took after it. Watkins got the 109 in his sights too, and pressed the button, but at that moment cannon shells ripped into Watkins' Warhawk from behind. He looked back and saw three enemy planes on his tail.

Lieut. Watkins saw the plane crash into the sea flaming. He dived from his three pursuers and nursed his smoking plane home, its fuselage riddled with shell holes.

Gets No Credit

MacArthur claimed his plane and he got credit for it, making him an "ace." Watkins claimed his plane. He didn't get credit for it. An examination revealed that his guns had jammed. None of them had ever fired at the enemy. The three Germans pursuing Watkins had shot down one of their own.

Friends of Staff Sgt. Albert Links of Hartford, Conn., are trying to persuade him to take up boxing seriously after the war. They haven't any idea that Links can toss accurate punches but they are positive his chin would absorb all the punishment any opponent could inflict. Links went on his fiftieth mission as a bombardier on a Mitchell bomber recently and his flight ran into intense flak. Links concentrated on the job at hand until something bounced none too gently on his chin.

He picked it up, but dropped it in a hurry. It was hot. It was metal. It was a piece of flak which had passed through the nose of the plane.

The Links chin was unscratched and not the slightest bit sore. He got out of the plane at the end of the mission singing, "Among My Souvenirs."

Fearful Of Turtle

Flight Officer James H. Montgomery of Farmington, N. C., fought off some German fighter planes and a large turtle in one 24 hour period, and admits he was more worried about the turtle than the Jerries.

He and Lt. Leonard Helton of Shelbyville, Ill., had their Spitfire fighters aloft to bag the German reconnaissance pilot always known as "Foto Freddy." They climbed to a height of five miles above the Mediterranean and looked around. Below they sighted two Messerschmitt 109s. Diving Helton got hits on one of the German craft. JACK DEMPSEY READY TO TAKE ON DER FUEHRER

CHICAGO, Aug. 20 — Jack Dempsey, appearing in the pink of condition in his uniform of a lieutenant commander in the U. S. Coast Guard, was ready today "to take on Hitler at any weight."

The former world's heavy-weight boxing champion, who stopped off in Chicago en route to Utah, declared he was down to fighting weight and had learned a lot of new rough and tumble tactics in the coast guard designed for what he termed "those rats we're fighting."

"We had rules and sportsmanship when I was in the ring," the Manassas, Mauler said. "But the only rule in this war is to get the Nazis and the Japs before they get you. I'd like to take on Hitler at any weight and I'm anxious to go abroad and see some real fighting."

Declaring he never would go back into the ring, Dempsey predicted that Joe Louis, the present heavyweight king, would retire when the war ends. He said: "When you're out of the ring for a couple of years, you simply can't come back. Joe knows that, too. He's one of the greatest fighters of all time, a swell sportsman and a credit to his race."

Jackson's commitment to an institution where he may be properly supervised was recommended by the Ohio Bureau of Juvenile Research, Dr. C. H. Young Jackson was sent to the bureau by Judge Weldon after an investigation was conducted in the drowning in the Scioto river June 3 of Gertrude Jones, 14, daughter of Herbert Jones. Witnesses said (Continued on Page Three)

MEDALS GIVEN AVIATORS FOR PLOESTI RAID

CAIRO, Aug. 20—Awarding of congressional medals of honor to Col. John Roger (Killer) Kane of Eagle Springs, Tex., and Leon William Johnson, a West Point graduate, for conspicuous gallantry during the American air raid on Romanian oil fields at Ploesti was announced today.

Kane, 36, who crash-landed in Cyprus after the raid, told his crew before they took off: "It would take a ground force the size of the British Eighth army a year or more to fight its way to Ploesti. We are going to do it with 2,000 men in a single day."

Johnson, 38, found 40 holes in his Liberator when he returned from the raid.

The seven islands of the Lipari and Stromboli chain north of Sicily have fallen to the United States navy. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters announced today as Allied warships pummeled both coasts of the Calabrian peninsula and heavy United States bombers loosed devastating assaults on railway yards and power installations at Foggia, 80 miles northeast of Naples.

American marines took over control of the two main islands of Lipari and Stromboli and the occupation placed the whole group known as the Aeolians at the disposal of the Allies.

Capture of Stromboli put the American marines 37 miles west of the Italian mainland and marked the first time in the present war that marines had set foot on European territory. The islands (Continued on Page Three)

DEATH TOLL IN FACTORY BLAST MAY REACH 18

KEARNY, N. J., Aug. 20 — Fear was expressed today by authorities that the number of dead in last night's explosion at the Congoleum-Nairn Inc. plant here may reach a total of 15 to 18.

Although only three persons are definitely known to be dead so far, a check of employee time cards at the company's office disclosed during the night that between 12 to 15 persons must be assumed to be missing—possibly buried in the ruins of the factory building which collapsed like a house of sand.

In addition to the known dead and missing, 37 other persons were injured, three of them critically.

The blast, which shook Kearny and was heard over a radius of five miles, happened shortly before six o'clock last night. Two adjoining buildings of the 12 on the fifty-acre site of the company were badly damaged and many of those hurt were in these structures when the explosion let go. Cause of the blast is yet to be determined.

So intense was the force of the blast that the five-story reinforced concrete structure was reduced to a mass of rubble as walls bulged and crashed to the ground. An intense fire which followed the explosion made rescue activities more difficult.

on the Russian front. German airmen, in particular, who were captured by the Americans and British had been pulled away from the Russian front.

The importance of the new "mission to Moscow" is emphasized by Russia's creation of a free German committee, whose propaganda to Germany has offered the Reich a peace short of the Anglo-American "unconditional surrender" formula.

This so-called "German national committee" has presented Germany the following two "peace" terms: (1) Overthrow the Nazis. (2) Withdraw to the original German frontiers of June, 1941, date of the Russian attack. Russia has promised that compliance with these terms will mean the removal of Soviet troops from German soil and the establishment of Germany as a single, sovereign nation.

President May Go

President Roosevelt, it is stated, would like to send Secretary of State Cordell Hull to meet Stalin. The mission is regarded as so vital to U. S.-Soviet relations that the highest possible ranking officer of the American government should undertake it. Hull's continued presence in Washington, however, is of such importance that this mission might be ruled out.

As an alternative, it is thought that Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles might be chosen as the President's envoy.

The arrival of Secretary Hull today in Quebec is expected to plunge the Roosevelt-Churchill conference here into intensive political situation involving the immediate future as well as the basic framework for the post-war world.

It is felt in Quebec that, as the conferences approach their end, the military planning phase of the war has now been completed, and that the final plans have the stamp of approval of both President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill.

The last few days of the conference, it is believed, will be concerned with diplomatic and international political developments which have grown out of the war.

Sessions Near Close

Correspondents now anticipate that the meetings, in session since August 10, will be finally adjourned on Monday or Tuesday at the very latest.

Meanwhile, a hint of the all-important work being undertaken at the Roosevelt-Churchill conference was found in the words of Brendan Bracken, British minister of information, at a news conference.

Asked for an outline of the scope of the plans now being worked out at the Chateau Frontenac and the Citadel, Bracken replied that, "the plans are to bomb and burn and ruthlessly destroy in every way available the people who are responsible for creating this war."

And, as added evidence of the world-wide scope of the current talks, he told newsmen that "its all one war."

Bracken gave newsmen, and through them all the Allied peoples, reassurances that Britain intended to remain wholeheartedly in the war until all the Axis nations are brought to "unconditional surrender."

"When we have ground down Hitler," he told his news conference, "The whole might of the British empire is going to be given over to the task of dealing with the Japanese, who are a ruthless, savage, people."

"The war may end in Europe," he declared, "but we will not lay down our arms until the Japanese have paid the price for their treachery."

Keller claims that his wife and the ex-soldier became too friendly shortly after the man arrived to stay at the Keller home. When he fired the farmhand, Keller says in his petition, his wife left the Monroe township home with him. Mrs. Keller went away July 21, the petition said.

He crashed into the sea, but a third Messerschmitt whom neither American pilot had seen had dived on Montgomery and fired a cannon shell with accuracy.

Montgomery suddenly found himself flying upside down and unable to right his plane. He bailed out, inflated his collapsible dinghy and tried to paddle southward with his hands, having figured out that he was five miles northeast of Palermo. Helton returned to base and led a Spitfire searching party without spotting Montgomery.

Spearfish

At daylight, Montgomery was hungry, so he speared a fish with his knife and ate most of it. Then he noticed a large turtle and became frightened that it would upset his dinghy. He inched out and punched the turtle in the nose. It swam away. Planes spotted him, and the aircraft rescue service picked him up.

"That turtle had me worried," he said.

Five or six heavy German guns were holding an American ground force advance in northeastern Sicily. American artillery couldn't seem to locate them. Air support was requested. An invader squadron led by Major Fred Crowder, Jr., of Richmond, Va., was "briefed" on the target.

They flew over, but could see no evidence of the carefully camouflaged guns. They knew they were over the right spot anyway, so they peeled off and unloaded their bombs. They returned to their base. A message was awaiting them.

Four of the blocking guns had been knocked out. American infantry had already pushed on beyond them.

for 20 years have served as a place of detention and have little military value other than that they will be useful as observation posts. On Stromboli there is a still active volcano and its red glow provides a picturesque sight for all ships plying the area.

Foggia Hard Hit

Foggia was attacked in strength by Flying Fortresses of the North African air force and this assault was followed closely with a raid by B-24 Liberator bombers from the Middle East.

The one-two punch of the American heavy bombers created considerable havoc among the railway yards, electric power plants and the industrial area. The Fortresses and escorting planes accounted for 34 Axis fighter planes and the Liberators destroyed at least four. Another 12 were listed as probably destroyed.

The preceding night British Wellington bombers laced the same target area and photographs revealed that the railway lines to Naples, Bari and elsewhere were cut and that numerous fires were blazing.

Marauder bombers and other medium groups fanned out over southern Italy to devastate railway yards at Sapri. Mitchell's pounded Salerno while much-bombed Cantanero, on the arch of the boot, was the focal point for still another assault. Trains at Cosenza were hit and Warhawks hit tracks near Melito and swept the beaches to the south.

The overall aerial operations cost the Allies 17 planes.

Scaletta Shelled

A naval communique announced that a force of British cruisers and destroyers bombarded Scaletta, on the west coast of the Calabrian peninsula, some 26 miles southeast of Cape Palinuro where the railway runs close to the sea.

"Naval activity continues on both coasts of the Calabrian peninsula and on the eastern shore of the straits of Messina," the announcement said.

The brief communique on seizure of Lipari and Stromboli said that these two main islands of the Aeolian group surrendered to a United States naval expedition and it was believed that the islands were taken without a shot being fired.

There are seven principal islands in all lying about 40 miles from the west coast of Italy and flanking the area of Sicily nearest to the straits of Messina and the Italian toe. Lipari is the biggest and most fertile of the group. Vulcano is the nearest to Sicily, lying 17 miles northwest of the port of Milazzo.

Stromboli is the most famous for its hourly volcanic eruptions. This island is the most northerly and is situated 26 miles west of Cape Maticeo.

Germans Withdrawing

German forces in southern Italy were reported withdrawing still further northward and were said to have established a new defense line some 30 miles north of Reggio di Calabria.

(The London Evening Star quoted the Algiers radio as saying that the Germans are continuing to withdraw the bulk of their forces from southern Italy and are now nearly 40 miles from Reggio di Calabria.)

The aerial war on Axis Europe from the west continued during the night when Britain-based RAF Mosquito bombers again attacked Berlin and airfields and railroads in France and Belgium. One bomber failed to return.

In Russia, the battle for Kharkov appeared to be nearing a climax as Soviet forces south of the city pressed to within six miles of the Ukrainian steel center, threatening momentarily to cut off the German garrison's last two railroad escape routes.

Russ Move Ahead

Eighty-five miles to the west, other Russian units blasted their way to within less than eight miles of Sumy and 24 miles of Poltava, important railroad junctions on the route to the Germans secondary defense line along the bend of the Dnieper river.

To the north, front-line dispatches said the Nazis surrendered an important strong point east of Bryansk, pivotal German base west of Moscow.

In the Pacific, American light naval units dispersed a flotilla of Japanese barges which sought to reinforce besieged Japanese garrisons on Kolombangara and New

Allied Ship Sinking By Aerial Torpedoes Hints Spain May Be Cheating

BY DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20—The Spanish and Nazi radio blared forth a message last week-end, which, if true, sounds very suspicious for supposedly neutral Spain. On the basis of the Axis-Spanish announcement, it would appear that Germany had established a secret bomber base in the Spanish Balearic Islands or somewhere in Spain.

What the German radio claimed was that a squadron of Nazi torpedo planes (on Friday, August 13) sank 70,000 tons of Allied shipping including two destroyers and four large merchant ships, just East of Gibraltar, as a big convoy was entering the Mediterranean.

The interesting thing about the Nazi communique was that the raid was reported made by torpedo planes. It happens that torpedo planes have a very limited radius between 300 and 400 miles. Because of the tremendous weight of the torpedo they cannot fly far; cannot spare much time hovering around in the air looking for their target.

In fact some of the torpedo planes which went out to get the Bismarck were purely sacrifice planes never expected to come back.

Compared to this 300-400 mile radius, it is a full 800 miles from Gibraltar to the nearest base in France.

Big mystery, therefore, is where the Nazi torpedo planes came from. Was it the nearby Balearic Isles, or a hidden point on the coast of Spain? This is the first case in a long long time that Axis torpedo planes have been able to penetrate anywhere near Gibraltar.

The Spanish radio gave further corroborating details, told how the Allied convoy was composed of 70 ships bound for Africa and how German pilots had been picked up by Spanish ships, while a German plane made an emergency landing at Aguilas.

But there was nothing to explain how German torpedo planes were able to make this record-breaking flight. So, either the Nazis have developed a new long-range torpedo plane or else Franco has given the Nazis a secret base in Spain.

JIMMY BYRNES' "WHISKERS"

Ex-Justice Jimmy Byrnes went out to dinner the other night at the home of his old friend Walter Brawn, taking with him the Byrnes' family pet, "Whiskers," a scottie which recently has been featured pictorially in Washington newspapers.

"Whiskers" was tied in the rear garden of the Brown home while the guests went in to dinner. But he protested loudly and vociferously.

"I guess we'll have to do something about 'Whiskers,'" Justice Byrnes finally remarked. "He's been taking himself seriously lately. It all comes from getting his picture in the newspapers."

CAPITAL CHAFF

People who have talked to the duPonts lately find that they are very much opposed to Wendell Willkie, consider him too progressive, but are very strong for Gov. Dewey. . . . Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, who has not been so keen about Willkie lately, took a trip through New England this summer and was amazed at Willkie's popularity. In that part of the country, according to Bridges, there is no question whom the Republicans want as their 1944 nominee. . . . The AFL and CIO got together in Illinois recently and decided that Democratic Senator Lucas' labor record was too reactionary for them. On the other hand his probable Republican opponent for re-election, Richard Lyons, was even worse. So labor groups are now looking around for an independent candidate to run for Senator in Illinois. . . . Gen. WELL-BEHAVED SOLDIERS

Capt. George Vournas has given friends in the White House one of the finest tributes which could be paid the American army. Writing from North Africa, he says:

"I walked home with a colonel at a late hour in a city in North Africa in control of our troops. On our way we met many unescorted women. We were particularly impressed because when the famous 8th Army was in the same city last year no woman dared walk alone after sunset.

"Our boys behave here as if they were on Connecticut Avenue in Washington. I am sure this exemplary behavior will constitute a great national asset with these people in the future."

But when he criticized the Argentine government, Argentina stopped its long-wave relay of his short-wave broadcast. . . . More and more women have become Washington correspondents. that young Jackson disregarded the cries of the girl and of her brother, Herbert, Jr., that she could not swim, dragged her to deep water and then let her go with the current. The child's body was recovered two days later.

The Jackson youth was declared by the Bureau of Juvenile Research to be a bully. He is large for his age, and shows tendencies, the bureau report said, that indicate he should have supervision in an institution such as the Industrial School.

Young Jackson has been in the bureau for observation since June 10. Dr. Calhoun's report says that he does not listen to orders, pinches smaller children and does other things of which a boy 16 should be broken.

The bureau recommended that Jackson be sent to the Ford Re-public School for Boys at Farmington, Mich., but an effort made by Judge Weldon to send him there failed when the Ford-supported institution said that its staff is undermanned now because of the war.

Jackson was taken to Lancaster Friday by Juvenile Officer John Kerns.

OPEN LETTERS

TO CAMP LEADERS

PASTORS: Mount of Praise camp meeting Council session is again in full swing, and I hope you lots of success in your religious work. The East Ohio street property has long been a mecca for hundreds and more hundreds of persons participating in your religious services and the continued success of the meetings is proved by the ever-increasing throngs present. This year may find some persons unable to attend because of gasoline and tire rationing. Others may be engaged in important war work, and their time will be so taken that they cannot participate. Despite these factors I feel certain that your gathering will be marked with success. The opening address made Wednesday afternoon by your moderator, the Rev. Mr. Keaton, was inspiring and should give all of you added incentive to do everything you can in your chosen work. Circleville welcomes you and hopes you a happy visit here.

CIRCUITEER.

TO WAR BOND BUYERS

ALL: Every one of us will be called on in September to dig plenty deep to help Uncle Sam finance his war effort. War Loan campaigns Nos. 1 and 2 have taken about all the loose money in this district, and now it's deeper into the pockets everyone is going to be sent to dig up the money needed to meet the $1,331,000 assigned as the county's Third War Loan quota. This drive is for the public; banks will not be asked to share the load. So it means dig, and dig plenty.

CIRCUITEER.

TO MEAT EATERS

FOLK: Now it is synthetic beefsteak. Anheuser-Busch, Inc., the St. Louis brewers, are making it, and have already delivered thousands of pounds to the army and the lend-lease administration. It is made by mixing yeast with water and molasses, and then treating it with ammonia, which turns the yeast to protein, and finally stirring in air. This seems to refute the old notion that you can't get something from nothing.

CIRCUITEER.

TO MANUFACTURERS

SIRS: You fellows would be doing a great service to yourselves, you would be helping your employees, and you would also be cooperating in a better manner with the Circleville fire department if you set up hard and fast orders that at the first sign of flames in any part of your factories that the fire department be called. Several times in recent years calls to the engine house have been delayed, because employes thought they would be able to handle blazes, which in early stages might have seemed to be of little importance. But any fire can be disastrous. What would happen to your investment in your factories and to the jobs of your workmen and workwomen if your factories should be burned to the ground? That could happen. Why not give the fire department a break, and at the same time help yourselves by having experienced firefighters on hand at the earliest possible moment? It might save you many thousands of dollars, and, in addition, some lives.

CIRCUITEER.

TO CHARLES A. MILLER

OFFICER: Although you removed from Circleville many years ago and therefore your acquaintanceship here must be limited, I congratulate you on your promotion from major to lieutenant-colonel on the staff of General Douglas MacArthur in the southwest Pacific war theatre. To be on General MacArthur's staff means that you have what it takes to make a splendid army man. To become a lieutenant-colonel means that you are doing a good job in that leader's organization. I hope you a lot of success.

CIRCUITEER.

TO HOUSEWIVES

WOMEN: September 12 brings you another job, that of handling brown stamps for purchases of meats, fats, oils, butter and cheese, and I feel certain that you will be able to handle your job in good fashion. There's one thing about this rationing: it does prove that the woman of the house is a swell manager. Just how far we men would get along in juggling and balancing and managing the ration stamps that are handled each week and each month is really something. I'm afraid that the last two weeks of any given ration period would find the household without food and without any means of obtaining it. Women are doing a fine job, and I feel certain that the added responsibility of the brown stamps will not bother you in the least.

CIRCUITEER.

TO GIRLS, BOYS

YOUNGSTERS: Harold Costlow, in charge of lining up emergency workers for farms and factories, came through with a statement the other day that was mighty pleasing. He said that you boys and girls who have been going into the rural areas to help farmers of the district have been working, and hard. He discounted the belief that city boys and girls have a lot of fun but do little work when they volunteer for farm service. Boys and girls who have been doing farm work are helping to win the war, no matter how little work they might do, and Mr. Costlow is doing a neat job in lining up the volunteers.

CIRCUITEER.

TO STUMBO, WILLIAMS

FARM HANDS: Sheriff Charles Radcliff is very grateful to you fellows for the job you did the other morning in grabbing two automobile theft suspects and holding them until the sheriff arrived. Your cooperation was perfect, and not only the sheriff but other persons as well thank you for the role you played. Both of you became suspicious when you saw two young fellows changing license tags on an automobile. You held them in custody until the sheriff appeared, and a few minutes later they admitted stealing the vehicle. This is the kind of cooperation that adds a kick to enforcing laws. So, Elzie Stumbo and John Williams, thanks to you.

It's Rather Lonesome But You Can Always
With Congress Away Battle the Weather

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—Late August in the capital on the Potomac with both the president and congress away! What is there to get good and mad about?

Why, the weather, of course! Last week the heat was so intense you thought you must have strayed before the open door of an oven where potatoes were roasting at 450 degrees Fahrenheit.

This week has brought a sharp drop in the mercury. You wonder if you have wandered into the Pentagon building where the war department does its official busting in a temperature so violently air-cooled that its 40,000 workers almost need ear-muffs to keep off the frostbite.

That arsenal of bureaucracy, by the way, is the place to find your ex-cook. Not long ago, I saw at the Pentagon building four of my lost and lamented servants, to wit: Evelyn Byrd Johnston, Louisa Lee, Geneva Smith and Lilly Mae Jones. Evelyn Byrd Johnston, who was as pretty as a picture postcard and very light stepping, was carrying trays in one of the cafeterias—the one for line officers where nobody under a captain may eat.

Louisa Lee, who once answered my telephone adroitly, was in charge of certain confidential files. Geneva was in one of the big kitchens dishing up salads. Ah, Geneva! What a flourish you could give parsley and cheese balls in the gay old days. Trish Lilly Mae, with a rose in her hair, was taking dictation from a bureau chief. Lilly Mae never took dictation from me!

But such are the fortunes of war and domesticity in Washington, and such is one of its moods—in the second summer after Pearl Harbor.

To return to the local calm brought on by an absentee congress and president, I sort of like to have congress around. The lawmakers on the "Hill" have been here so much during the feverous New Deal period, I miss them when they're gone. No matter how many government agencies, war and peace-time models, are housed behind marble colonnades or beaver-board partitions, I feel that the capital loses much of its personality when congress is not in session. It is a national habit to laugh at congress. But I've got accustomed to its thundering oratory, its devotion to the "peepul," and its denunciation or support of whatever president may be at the other end of Pennsylvania avenue.

I have a theory about the frequent outings in the Office of Price Administration. Go down sometime to the corner of the Social Security building in which work the poor creatures who must decide how to ration the millions in the United States and the rest of the world. You'll agree with me that OPA-ers are licked, not by food shortages, nor price excesses nor black markets but by the noises of the trains that roar by their office windows.

Every train southward-bound from Washington passes the doors of the OPA. OPA chief, Prentiss Brown, was trying to explain to a recent press conference of a hundred reporters why he wasn't going to resign—yet, and what had become of porterhouse steak and butter, and several hundred other necessities.

"Mr. Chairman," a reporter asked, "will green vegetables roll back to the price level of September, '42 while—"
Chug-chug-chug! Hiss! Roar! Grind! A freight train charged by in such fury that the quietest spirits amongst us looked for railroad ties to hang on. Surely the train was coming head on.

When the unfortunate Chester Bowles tried to hold his first press conference four hours after he arrived in town to be the new general manager of the OPA, the noise of the passing trains so deafened the reporters' ears that they haven't been able to remember yet what Mr. Bowles said about the price of onions or how beautiful the world will be when Mr. Roosevelt makes that fourth term.

These, of course, are minor disturbances. As I said in the beginning, with the president and congress away, there is a definite hiatus in Washington. The White House doors are bolted. Mrs. Roosevelt is off somewhere or other.

Congress is as silent as a tomb of yesteryear except for the muttering of cleaning women who wrestle with last season's chewing gum and tobacco juice on the marble floors. There's nobody home at either end of Pennsylvania avenue. Maybe it's the calm before a new storm.

Anyhow at the moment the weatherman is running the town.

Treatments for Hay Fever

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

I NOTICED in the column yesterday the annual return of our old enemy, hay fever. It is about as inevitable as anything can be and the date is August 15th, or thereabouts.

It is estimated that 10 per cent at least of the entire population Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

is susceptible to the malady. What advice can be given these people as to its management and treatment?

I believe that feasible and helpful treatments come under these five heads.

Hay Fever Treatments

1. A vacation to a non-hay-fever region for the duration. Among the reliable spots are the country around Duluth, Minnesota, and the White Mountains and California.

2. Fitting up your bedroom with a pollen filter and air conditioner in the window. I gave a list of the firms manufacturing these devices in the column a few weeks ago.

3. Pre-seasonal Vaccination.—This method of prevention is becoming more and more exact and successful. Whereas a few years ago I reported that only about 25 per cent of these vaccinations were successful, I now believe that in experienced hands the chances of successful prevention are close to 75 per cent of those who try it.

Psychology and Medicines
4. Psychology.—I think this is a very important item and one that certainly should not be left out. Most people can stand the disagreeable features of life if they know what it is they are going to have to stand. I think the hay fever victim should realize that no matter what he does—pollen vaccines or what—he is never going to be permanently cured. His affliction is going to come back on him annually, or else he has to take preventive shots annually. The trouble is going to last approximately from August 15 until October 1. It will never kill him. In fact, it probably promotes longevity.

5. Medicines.—There are two kinds of medicines that give some relief. One kind is taken either by mouth or hypodermically. And the other is local application to the nose or eyes. The medicines that give most relief constitutionally are adrenalin (or epinephrine), ephedrine and benzedrine. Adrenalin is most useful when asthma supervenes, as it does with most people towards the end of the season. It would, perhaps, be wise to save it for that time. Ephedrine acts in much the same way, but is not usually so hard on that patient. (Adrenalin makes one very nervous.) Benzedrine relaxes the bronchial tubes, and relieves congestion. It can be taken by mouth.

All of these can be sprayed or inhaled into the nose and will give temporary relief to the congestion. Another good preparation of this sort is neo-synephrine, sprayed in the nose. For the eyes, hot boric acid solution dropped in the eyes or used as a compress. Estivin is a preparation that has had a long, popular career of success, dropped in the eyes three or four times a day.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
P. K. E.—Is a rheumatic heart with mitral stenosis serious? Would the condition mean that a patient would have to live pretty much between a bed and a chair for the rest of his life?

Answer: Rheumatic heart and mitral stenosis are serious, but by no means require such rigid restriction of activity as you mention. During the stage of compensation, which lasts to forty, fifty or sixty years, the patients carry on an active business, have babies and bring up a family.

J. R. J.—Is catarrhal deafness curable? Has any progress been made with the sulfa drugs in treating catarrhal deafness?
Answer: Catarrhal deafness is in nearly all cases progressive. Sometimes a special operation gives some relief. The sulfa drugs are of no value in this condition.

Leave My Heart Alone

ADELAIDE HUMPHRIES

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER THIRTY-SEVEN
WHEN MARTIN reminded Karen, in explanation of the diathermy machine in his trailer, that he had come south partly because of his health, she took it as an opening to ask the question that had been bothering her in regard to him for some time.

She said, "Yes, you did tell me that, Martin, and I was thinking, not long ago, how well you are looking, fattened out and suntanned. Your health is not so bad that it would keep you from being drafted, is it?" She knew that was rather an abrupt way of putting her question, but she simply had to know what Marty was going to do about the war, if he did not mean to do his part in it.

"That scowl appeared between his nice blue eyes once more. His answer was as abrupt as her question. 'How should I know?' haven't been asked to pass a physical—recently."

"But if you did pass, you . . . you'd go, wouldn't you?" Maybe he was sensitive on this matter of his health; certainly he was not acting naturally; never before had Martin been so abrupt and withdrawn from her.

"I'd have to go or go to jail, or a conscientious objector's camp, I believe."

"But you aren't an objector . . . you'd want to go, if you were physically able, wouldn't you, Marty?" There she had put it straight enough this time; she waited almost breathlessly for his answer to this. It meant so much to her, more than she liked to admit.

He did not answer for a second, then his face relaxed again into his slow smile, although rather as if he forced that wide grin of his than that it came spontaneously. "What is this?" he asked. "A third-degree? It might not be a matter of what I wanted to do, your honor. And, before you put me through any more on the witness stand, I might remind you that long ago, when we first met, I warned you you would have to take me as you found me and believe me to be what I told you I am."

"I did not say that I didn't believe in you," Karen returned, the faint color making her lovely face more lovely still. "I didn't mean it to sound like a third-degree. It's just, well, if I were a man, I'd be anxious to do my part."

"Like your Prince Charming," Marty broke in. "Which reminds me to say that he seemed a fairly decent sort, in spite of being so perfect. I always suspect perfection, you see, my lily maid. And I am equally pleased that you do not happen to be a man."

Karen knew he was deliberately not only trying to turn the conversation into different channels, but he was trying to make her angry. "Paul doesn't pretend perfection; he has his faults the same as everyone has. But at least he is honest about them."

"Meaning that I'm not," Martin said.

said. The smile left his face again. "I'm sorry, Kay, but you'll have to accept me as I am, too, or not at all. I think it's very fine of you to believe in me, if you are sure you do."

She should still have been angry, but there was such honesty in his eyes now, in the directness of that statement, in spite of its indirectness, that she found she did believe in him. She said, "I do, but maybe there are others who won't. What I mean is, Marty, people are so apt to believe the worst of other people. And I think you ought to know that there are some doubts about you and what you really are down here for. I'm not just saying this. I happen to know, although I cannot tell you how, that you are being watched."

He had not known that she would tell him that, and that it had been part of her reason for coming to see him, although now, as she told him, she knew it had been. She had not promised Paul that she would not warn Marty, although Paul had taken it for granted she would not. She had to warn him. If Martin was headed for trouble of any kind, she could not stand by and not do that much.

He did not have anything to say to that for a short while, either. His face still was thoughtful and serious. But he reached over and took Karen's two hands in his; his blue eyes looked into hers. "Thank you, my dear," he said quietly, "for telling me that. Not because I am in any danger, but because if it is so, I prefer to be aware of it and because your telling me shows that you do believe in me."

At his touch Karen's heart had leaped into her throat; she wanted to withdraw her hands from his, yet could not. She could not explain the commotion within herself; it was such a mixture of joy and relief, apprehension and fear.

"I'm going to have to ask you to go on that way," he went on, "believing in me, accepting me and whatever I do on trust. It seems," he gave a little grimace at this, "I must keep on asking that of you in regard to everything."

She knew he referred now to that moment in the tower. So he had not forgotten it; it had meant something to him, as it had to her. It must have been triumph that caused her heart to beat so wildly now. But this was not safe—this was dangerous—to be here alone with Martin, his hands holding hers. She did withdraw her own, if reluctantly. She would show him this time that she could be the stronger of the two.

She said, "I'll go on that way as long as you ask it of me." Only yesterday she had told Paul that she would go on, as before, with him. It seemed she must have faith in two men, rather than in one or each separately.

Martin said again, "Thank you." He left off the "my dear" he had added before. But it held as much sincerity, as much tenderness. Then he changed his mood, with the lightning capacity of which only he was master, becoming his usual gay, charming self, adopting, too, the old gay mockery. "I believe the way to the feminine heart is via a uniform. But, even in war, Kay, we cannot all wear gold buttons and insignia. Your airman certainly does himself proud in his, even if it's not regular Army yet. And while we are on that subject, I hope you won't shed your feminine appeal for a uniform of any sort. The reaction is exactly the opposite with a man. His heart beats a much faster rat-a-tat-tat when he glimpses a gal in a pretty get-up like the blue you're dolled up in now, matching your eyes and complemented by a soft rose scarf like you've got around your neck to match the roses in your cheeks, than it does if the same lovely appears in some regulation cap."

Karen smiled, amused at the eloquence he poured into that rather over-long speech. Smiling, too, because of what her answer was. "I am to get my Red Cross uniform next week. Ambulance Corps. I just passed my examination. And our station wagon is to be turned over to the outfit, too." She laughed at the dismay on Marty's expressive face. "It's really a honey, the uniform, gray-blue and tan tailored. And the ducktail little cap I ever wore. I'm terribly sorry you won't think my blue eyes as blue, or my cheeks as near like roses—that WAS a speech, coming from Marty, at that!"—but I think I shall look quite nice in it, truly I do."

"Woe is me," Marty said, rolling his eyes comically. "Yet maybe 'tis better thus. My poor old heart is weak enough as it is. Remember, I warned you once not to tamper with it, captain. I was only telling you facts, however. Science has proved what I just said by a tiny apparatus affixed to that temperamental organ. A woman's beats twice as rapidly when a male appears in military attire; a man's slows down just as noticeably when a sweater-junkie dons any garment fashioned to uniformity. But science and hearts are funny things."

"They certainly are," Karen could agree wholeheartedly with that. But her own heart had taken a tumble from its recent high heights. She suddenly had remembered what it was she had read—no, she had heard it just the other day over the radio—about diathermy machines. The government had issued an order that every one was to be registered, for a diathermy machine could be converted into a short-wave sending set. She wondered if Martin had heard that particular broadcast, and if he possibly could have been using his big diathermy machine for any such purpose as short wave. He had not been using it for a health treatment. He had been not only taken by surprise, but noticeably disturbed, when she had found him engaged with it.

STARS SAY—

For Friday, August 20

A THRILLING and unforeseen circumstance may definitely set aside the recent depressed and limiting state of affairs, making way for some very concrete action in new and unaccustomed grooves of endeavor of major significance. It might be wise to grasp such situations with all the energies, abilities and resources at command, since they may carry promise of unusual disengagement in the way of gain, stability, accumulations and future status and security of sound worth. While vigorous attack is advised, yet strategic and policy may also assist.

God Gives Laws for His People

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Aug. 22, is Exodus 19:24; Deut. 11:18-21; Gal. 3:23-28; 5:13, 14, the Golden Text being Luke 10:27, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself.")

THE LESSON today is so long that we can comment upon only a small portion of it, leaving out many interesting parts. The older classes, especially, should be urged to read all the lesson and to realize how fundamental are these laws laid down for the Children of Israel—laws relating to the relations of man to God, and of man to man.

The Israelites left Rephidim and, led by the cloud, traveled slowly to the desert of Sinai, where they pitched their tents before Mount Sinai, which is 1,200 to 1,500 feet high. The huge cliff resembles a colossal pulpit, and from this pulpit, on which the great cloud brooded, the Almighty spoke to the people, giving them the ten commandments and also the other laws which were to guide them in their future life.

Moses went up first and God called to him out of the mountain, telling him what he should say to the people. He was to remind them how He had brought them out of Egypt, destroying their enemies. If they obeyed His voice they should be "a peculiar treasure unto Me above all people: for all the earth is Mine."

Chills Elders
Moses called the elders of the people and told them what the Lord had said. The people answered, "All that the Lord hath spoken we will do." And Moses returned the words of the people unto the Lord.

The Lord told Moses that He would appear in a thick cloud that the people might hear His voice on the third day, after they were cleansed and sanctified. They were not to come too near or touch the mount or they would die. On the third morning there were thunders and lightnings and a thick cloud upon the mount and the voice of the trumpet very loud, so that all the people were frightened and trembled.

"And Mount Sinai was altogether on a smoke, because the Lord descended upon it in fire: and the smoke thereof ascended as the smoke of a furnace, and the whole mount quaked greatly." The trumpet sounded long and waxed louder and louder. Moses spake and God answered him by a voice. The Lord then told Moses to go down to the people and speak to them, which he did.

"God spake all these words, beginning, I am the Lord thy God, which have brought thee out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage." Then the Lord gave them the Ten Commandments, and after that "all the people saw the thunders, and the lightnings, and the noise of the trumpet, and the mountain smoking; and when the people saw it, they removed and stood afar off." Moses told them to "fear not: for God is come to prove you, and that His fear may be before your faces, that ye sin not." The first of the laws God gave related to relations with Him, the second section man's relationship to his fellow men.

The first laws after the Ten were concerning the erection of altars; the next the relationship of master and servant; then injuries inflicted upon others, the rights of property. Next sex crimes and the prohibition of all forms of oppression.

Offering of Firstborn
The seventh division was the offering of the firstborn and first fruits to the Lord. Next laws prohibiting falsity—"Thou shalt not take up a false report: put not thy hand with the wicked to be an unrighteous witness." They were not to oppress strangers or harm them, "for ye know the heart of a stranger, seeing ye were strangers in the land of Egypt."

They were instructed exactly how they should keep the Sabbath, and concerning the three great feasts of Israel. Lastly, rules were given for their conduct when engaged in conquering Palestine, and Moses wrote down all the words of Jehovah, so that the Israelites could keep the laws always before them.

Love was to be the fulfilling of the law, however, "For ye, brethren, were called for freedom; only use not your freedom for an occasion to the flesh, but through love to be servants one to another. For the whole law is fulfilled in one word, even in this: Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Gal. 5:13, 14.

NORMAN'S BIG BLOW BATTERS RED BIRD CREW

By International News Service

The Columbus Red Birds today slipped to two full games behind the league-leading Milwaukee Brewers after being outpowered in 10 innings, 10 to 6.

Jackie Creel, who hurled a one-hitter against the Brewers earlier in the campaign, was saddled with the defeat when Jim Norman slammed a four-bagger with the bases loaded in the tenth inning to break up a 6-all deadlock. It was Norman's fourteenth of the season.

Columbus used four hurlers, Kenny Burkhardt, Red Barrett, Will Beckman and Creel. Earl Caldwell was credited with the victory after replacing Bill Fleming in the eighth inning.

The St. Paul Saints won their third straight over Indianapolis when John "Red" Marion stole home in the eighth inning after an intentional walk to Parker, filled the bases and set the stage for Marion's spectacular play. The final score was 5 to 4.

Jim Trexler, Indianapolis southpaw who was seeking his fifteenth victory, was the victim of Marion's theft as Ed Weiland, pitching his last game before entering the service, won his eleventh game.

Lou Lucier stifled the Minneapolis Millers to pitch Louisville to a 4 to 1 victory to square the four-game series for the Colonels who dropped a double-header on Tuesday.

Lucier had perfect control, striking out eight Millers and issuing one base on balls. Ewald Pyle was the losing hurler.

The Kansas City Blues tied the score in the ninth and then broke the ice in the thirteenth with one run to win 2 to 1, and making it three out of four from the Toledo Hens.

Loy Hanning was the loser while Bevens was credited with the victory.

REDSKINS RATE FAVORED ROLE IN STAR GAME

CHICAGO, Aug. 20—The Washington Redskins, professional football champions, resumed hard training today for their game next Wednesday night with the All-Star Collegians at Dwyer Stadium, Evanston, Ill.

The Redskins are putting in their final clinics for the annual contest at Loyola university while the all-stars are getting in shape at the Northwestern university field.

The pro league champions, who did their early training at San Diego, Cal., arrived in Chicago yesterday and engaged only in calisthenics in the afternoon.

Although Head Coach Harry Stuhldreher of the all-stars believes he has some of the best material that the collegiate squad has boasted in years, Coach Dutch Bergman of the pro team refused to be impressed. He said:

"Despite the overwhelming manpower of the college team and the group of expert coaches who are getting them in shape, I can say for myself and the players that we're confident of winning after a hard battle."

The all-stars suffered a severe blow in the injury to the knee of Paul Goversall, Columbia half-back, in Wednesday night's game with Camp Grant. The knee was in a cast today and Trainer Carl Erickson said the cast could not be removed for at least a week.

Throat troubles were treated by soaked sponges during the 14th century, according to prescriptions of those days.

Par Broken As Byrd, Cochran Feature Big Chicago Golf Tourney

Standings

By Leo Fischer
CHICAGO, Aug. 20—Having smashed par into numerous tiny bits in the opening day's pro-amateur event, 42 of the nation's top golfers today awaited tee-off time in the first round of the Victory National tournament at the Beverly Country Club.

Sam Byrd, the Philadelphia professional and one-time outfielder for the New York Yankees, teamed with Bob Cochran of St. Louis to win the first day's pro-amateur championship.

Playing 36 holes, with the better score of the two some counting at each hole, the victorious Byrd-Cochran duo finished 11 strokes under par with 31-33-35-32 for a total of 131. Even then they weren't assured of a triumph until the last scores were in.

Harold (Jug) McSpaden, who captured the recent $10,000 Tam O'Shanter tournament, with his partner, Sgt. Jimmy McHale of Philadelphia, wound up in the second spot one stroke behind.

The pair finished the morning round with 65, then came back with a 67, thanks to a splendid approach and a nice putt by McHale for a birdie 4 on the 18th. McHale is a former pro who recently was restored to amateur status.

In third place at 133 was the team of Mike Turnesa of White Plains, N. Y., and Jim Frisina of Springfield, Ill.

Judging by the amazing scores in the pro-amateur best ball competition, selection of a favorite in the Victory National tournament loomed as a difficult task.

No fewer than 21 of yesterday's 31 combinations wound up with better than par—142.

Ten amateurs were included in the brilliant field scheduled to start play today in the first 18 of the 72-hole medal play test, which winds up Sunday afternoon.

Together with the professionals, who are shooting for the first prize of $1,000 in War Bonds, they make up the greatest collection of links talent gathered on one course since the start of the war.

The net proceeds of the tournament will provide extra comforts for wounded veterans of World War II.

Most of those who ventured to pick a favorite said they expected the competition would simmer down to a case of the field against Byron Nelson, who was paired with Don Heppes, Oak Park, Ill., amateur, to finish with 134 for fourth place in the pro-amateur.

Heppes gave "Lord Byron" a little help, but the two 67's pretty nearly represented Nelson's individual card.

For the winners, Cochran provided some hefty assistance, but Sam Byrd's uncanny putting was the deciding factor.

BROOKLYN ENDS LOSING STREAK

Curt Davis Comes Through; Reds Top Braves; Cards Lose To Phillies

By James Powers

NEW YORK, Aug. 20—The Brooklyn Dodgers today could face their mirrors without flinching after several days of play when they might well have felt too bad even to look at one another. And Curt Davis who until yesterday had been unable to deliver a game for Leo the Lip since July 17, today deserved, whether he got it or not, the admiration of friends and fans.

The reason for the loud hurrahs was that yesterday the Dodgers won a ball game. After losing three in a row, the Bums, sparked by Davis, took the Chicago Cubs, 9 to 2. Davis served up only one bad pitch which was to Bill Nicholson in the first frame, allowing Nicholson his 15th homer of the season.

To practically no one's surprise the Giants lost yesterday to the Pirates, 8 to 1. Vince DiMaggio's 14th homer in the fourth inning with two on put the game on ice. Jim Russell knocked out two homers to bring four of the eight runs in.

A three-run revolt by the Cincinnati Reds in the sixth inning of yesterday's game with Boston gave Lefty Clyde Shoun a 7 to 5 victory over the Braves. Ray Starr was retired in the fifth after Boston gained a 4 to 3 lead over the Reds.

In a night game at Philadelphia, the Phillies got four runs in the sixth and two in the seventh to push out the St. Louis Cardinals, 6 to 5. The Cards knocked Barney out of the box with four runs in the eighth but were held in the home stretch by Kras.

Tigers, Sox Divide
 In the American league the Tigers and Boston Red Sox split a twin bill yesterday, when the Sox edged out Detroit by 4 to 3 in the opener but the Tigers took the afterpiece, 10 to 0. In the second tilt the Detroit nine exploded with a total of 14 hits starting the 10-0 game with a three-run first inning.

In an exhausting four-hour contest last night, the New York Yankees outlasted the Cleveland Indians to win the 13-inning game, 2 to 1. Ernie Bonham collected his 12th victory of the season when the Yankees tied the score in the ninth and won the ball game on a two-bagger by Joe Gordon.

Sherrard Robertson and Joe Early both scored homers yesterday to give the Washington Senators a 4 to 3 game over the Chicago White Sox. Emil Leonard was hit by the Sox for a three-run rally in the eighth, but the Washington hurl

ODT Regulation Denies Bus Rides To Many School Pupils

EDUCATORS SEEK CHANGE IN RULE BEFORE WINTER

Boys And Girls Inside Two Mile Radius Must Walk, Federals Rule

COUNTY PROGRAM SET

Four Townships Seriously Affected By Program Mapped In Chicago

Unless Office of Defense Transportation officials in Chicago alter a schedule they have set up for transportation of school children in Pickaway county's rural schools during the 1943-44 term many youngsters attending four centralized buildings will be forced to walk as much as two miles to school and two miles home each day.

George D. McDowell, superintendent of county schools, said Friday that he is negotiating with ODT officials in Chicago in quest of a revision of the transportation program set up for Pickaway county.

The school superintendent declared that the route schedule adopted by the ODT for Pickaway county means that children of all ages from frail and tiny first graders to youths of high school age will be forced to walk if they live within two miles of their schools, unless the schedule is revised.

Four Townships Hit
Townships affected under the ODT schedule are Darby, Deer-creek, Muhlenberg and Scioto, the ODT holding that buses serving these four schools are not filled to capacity when they complete the run made in the past. Mr. McDowell points out that ODT in checking the number of pupils hauled to each building is not counting the boys and girls who live within two miles of the respective buildings, because with these children the buses would be filled.

"We are seeking adjustments in the schedule fixed for these four townships," Mr. McDowell declared, "and unless ODT does some changing many youngsters will face definite hardships this winter."

State department of education is taking action to seek changes in the ODT program. Delbert Woodford, assistant director of the department, declared that action of the ODT in denying or cutting gasoline rations of a score of Ohio school buses will force hundreds of school children to walk or miss classes this winter.

ODT Issues Order
"In June," Woodford said, "the ODT questioned the bus schedule of approximately 100 school districts in 35 Ohio counties, contending they failed to comply with ODT order to discontinue transportation for children living within two miles of a school, or a mile and a half from a trunk school bus route."

"Approximately 20 buses in as many school districts have been denied gasoline or had their allowances curtailed for the last half of the 1943 school year," he continued.

"The ODT office at Chicago decreed that five or six buses should have no gasoline at all for the period because the transportation they provide assertedly is unessential. Fuel allowances for the others have been curtailed so sharply that their pick-up schedules must be revised drastically."

Only about one-third of the Ohio schools districts have received gasoline certificates for their buses, Woodford said. He has asked C. H. Hutchins, chief of the ODT school bus section in Washington to issue temporary rations. "I cannot believe the situation serious enough," Woodford wrote Hutchins, "that it is necessary to deprive one single youngster of an education simply because your office will not provide gasoline."

Since the ODT order last year, Ohio school buses cut their driving by approximately 750,000 miles, and now 6,793 buses haul 286,000 children approximately 40,109,000 miles a year.

QUOTAS SET FOR AREA COUNTIES ON WAR BONDS

Quotas for all Ohio counties in the Third War Loan drive were announced Friday by Roy D. Moore, state War Finance committee chairman, who declared that Ohio's goal in the government's $15,000,000,000 War Loan total is $698,000,000. Pickaway county's obligation in the Third War Loan drive is $1,331,000, this amount being assigned entirely to the public.

The campaign opens September 9 and continues through September 30.

Biggest quota in the state is assigned, of course, to populous Cuyahoga county where $233,767,000 is being sought. Quotas assigned to various counties in the central Ohio district include, in addition to Pickaway's $1,331,000: Clinton, $1,357,000; Fairfield, $2,485,000; Fayette, $1,018,000; Highland, $1,225,000; Hocking, $421,000; Madison, $1,217,000; Perry, $1,047,000; Pike, $287,000; Ross, $2,417,000; Vinton, $196,000; Franklin, $46,239,000.

The week ending August 7 added $1,772.31 to the year's total, while for the same week a year ago the amount collected was $1,640.82.

Most other south central Ohio counties show similar gains.
